Event Sponsors

The JAA Australian Jewellery Awards celebrate and recognise design, craftsmanship and marketability in the jewellery industry. They are the ultimate industry awards, which reward creativity, skill and technique.

Demonstrating both craftsmanship and design skills are vital to succeeding as a jewellery designer. Many designers are inspired by an emotional event, and often the design begins with a story and ends with a piece of jewellery that can be kept forever. However, to be a superior jewellery "artist", designers must be technically skilled and have the ability to work with precious metals and gemstones.

Advanced technical and design skills – demonstrated by creativity, innovation and craftsmanship – are key features of the outstanding winning designs of the 2010 Awards.

The judges reviewed a total of 154 jewellery pieces, which were narrowed down to 51 finalists. There is enormous rigour around the judging process and I acknowledge the contribution of the judging panel for the outstanding results in the challenging judging process. I also wish to thank all the entrants for their outstanding efforts. The future of our industry rests in your hands.

Please enjoy reviewing all the entrants', finalists' and winners' pieces in this special Awards supplement in marie claire magazine.

Precious metal DESIGN AWARD

Using gold and platinum to create a jewellery piece really tests the ability of a designer. Not only do they need to factor in how the lustre of the gold or platinum can complement the sparkle of a diamond or gemstone, the ability to mould the precious metal into a unique form is paramount to the end result.

DESIGN AWARD

RETAIL VALUE ABOVE $5,001

Diamonds come in every colour of the spectrum. Truly colourless diamonds are extremely rare and as a result are expensive – designers in this category have combined high-value colourless diamonds with yellow, pink and blue varieties to bring out the natural brilliance of this most beautiful gem.

Emerging jewellers

1ST, 2ND, 3RD AND 4TH YEAR
APPRENTICE DESIGN AND CRAFTSMANSHIP AWARD

*T*his Award was established to support entry level designers to gain experience and confidence in presenting their designs to the industry. While this can be daunting for first and second year apprentices, the nine who entered all showed a high level of craftsmanship, innovation and design.

The art of designing and crafting jewellery can take many years to master. However, the entries from third and fourth year apprentices demonstrated that, albeit newcomers to the industry, they're ready to take on the qualified designers. The 18 apprentices who entered the awards have shown class beyond their years.
